

WE NOMINATE

Eric Frederick Goldman, one of the country's most stimulating interpreters of "America Past and Present," who over last weekend—in the midst of his 14th year as a Princetonian—helped launch the nationwide observance of the centennial of Woodrow Wilson's birth. At Bryn Mawr College, where the 28th President of the United States and the 13th president of Princeton University began his teaching career in the 1880's, the 40-year old Goldman played a key role in the first of the many commemorative events planned for 1956. And in the "Wilson tradition" Goldman's address, "Woodrow Wilson: The Test of War," provoked the most heated discussions of the two-day conference in which historians, political scientists and men of government participated.

"No President has ever summoned this nation to a nobler standard," Goldman said, and "none has presided over so tragic a debacle." It was Goldman's thesis that Wilson was a superb war President but that he did nothing whatsoever to control the public opinion and emotionalism which were to destroy any possibility of achieving his peace aims. Goldman's talk stirred memories of Wilson's years (1902-1910) as Princeton's president, when he fought and lost the two-phased "Battle of Princeton" over eating clubs and the location of the Graduate College. Here in the quiet of "Princeton Town" he made a college into a university and then, in his refusal to compromise, fell in bitter defeat in the same way he was to bow in the struggle over the League of Nations.

A native of Washington, D. C., and a teacher at Johns Hopkins until called to Princeton, Goldman is a prolific and gifted writer, who is at home in both scholarly and general publications. He formerly edited "Public Opinion Quarterly," served for several years as a contributing editor of "Time" Magazine and is currently book editor of "The Key Reporter," the journal of the Phi Beta Kappa Society. In 1953 he was singled out for the $2,000 Bancroft Prize, an award given annually for outstanding writing in American history. Characteristically enough, his prize-winning work, "Rendezvous with Destiny: A History of Modern American Reform," was described by one critic as a volume "I read with an alternation of passionate agreements and disagreements."

Last year Goldman, a sometime participant in radio and television programs and often a lecturer at other institutions, including Harvard, New York University, Pennsylvania, the University of Washington and Yale, received a Guggenheim Fellowship to carry forward studies of "American isolationism" in various sections of the country. This year he is also holding forth as a Senior Fellow of Princeton's three-year old Council of the Humanities, that was brought into being as a means of injecting life into the Humanities. As a Senior Fellow, the equivalent of a "distinguished professor," Goldman divides his term between teaching and research and is freed from all administrative duties.

For constantly striving to broaden his own and thereby his students' understanding of America and its history; for his "rare ability to communicate to others their own desire to pursue truth;" for personifying those qualities that Wilson sought in his own teacher-scholars; he is Town Topics' nominee for

Act II—20 Years Later. While many of the good things that 1956 holds in store for the Princeton community will not be unfolded for several months, the new year was not long in bringing good news. The revolving doors on the post office, a source of irritation to many since the building was completed just two decades ago, have been officially doomed.

Postmaster Charles F. Murray announced this week that bids on an entire new entrance for the building will be sought early in March. The narrow, revolving doors—to which no actual fatalities have been chargeable but nonetheless the cause of innumerable cases of high blood pressure—will be completely replaced.

A large double door, opening outward, will replace the present method of entry and exit. A new entrance facade and steps leading into the building are also part of the plans, the postmaster said.

Development in View. The planning board of South Brunswick Township will hold a public hearing on Tuesday, January 24, in Monmouth Junction on plans for a potentially vast housing development proposed for 250-acre site some eight miles from Princeton.

Reflecting the surge of population and industry in Central Jersey, the development is designed to be built gradually up to a 300-home mark, but the area involved could absorb as many as 490 homes, it is understood.

The development will be placed before the public and the South

This Week

Another step in the endless expansion of the greater Princeton area is reported this week with facts on a huge development planned between here and New Brunswick by a Princeton builder. Building activity also made news with the announcement by a township committeeman that he will resign from that body on taking up residence in the borough.

Other stories tell of a flying horse that has been grounded; of the scope of the community's 20-year growth as revealed in the annual report of The First National Bank; of a zoning amendment sought to establish a liquor license in the Shopping Center; and who won when a group of Nassau Street School children debated the relative merits of Robin Hood and Davy Crockett.

Brunswick board by the Kendall Construction Company headed by Herbert J. Kendall of 245 Elm Road, Princeton. The only official action to date by the board has specified the plans as a "major sub-division."

The tracts involve lie off Route 27 (the Princeton-Kingston to New Brunswick Road). While details of the plans will not be made available until the January 24 public hearing, it is understood that the housing development is planned for single-family dwellings in the moderate price range.

The proposed development coincides with news of new plants to be built by Johnson and Johnson and two other corporations in adjacent areas, as well as the rapidly changing picture of industrial growth along U.S. 1 in the greater Princeton area.

Wise Is Building in Borough. Township Committeeman Hugh D. Wise Jr. this week confirmed reports that he is building a new home — in the Borough — on Westcott Road property which his family has owned for many years. In accordance with New Jersey laws, ruling that a municipal office-holder must reside in the municipality in which he serves, Mr. Wise will be obliged to give up his Township post when he moves from his present home on Princeton-Kingston Road.

"I have made no definite commitments because I really don't know," Mr. Wise said. "The new house might be ready by early summer, or we might stay out in the Township until early fall. At any rate, I will miss no more than the last three or four meetings of my two-year Township term, which terminates in December."

Mr. Wise, a Princeton attorney who was elected to the committee at the time it grew from three to five members, has served as its police commissioner during his term. He said he and his family have wanted to utilize their Westcott Road site for a long time, and that "general family development" deemed it a good move at this point.

Township Mayor John H. Wallace Jr. made similar news last September, when he and Mrs. Wallace purchased a residence at 186 Library Place, in the heart of the Borough. As opposed to Mr. Wise's plans to move this year, however, Mayor Wallace announced that he had "no foreseeable plans that involve leaving the Township." Subsequently, he was re-elected to a three-year term on the committee.

"Community Bank" Reports. A healthy state of financial affairs at the close of business last year — "an eventful one in the history of our bank" — was reported Tuesday to directors and shareholders of the First National Bank of Princeton, "a community bank." The desirable year-end condition was contained in annual summaries made by Joseph S. Hoff, chairman of the board of directors, and John P. Poe, president.

Mr. Hoff, an active octogenarian who has served as a leader of the bank's endeavors since he helped found it in 1893, pointed with pride to the institution's first branch office, the West Windsor building now under construction near Princeton Junction, stressing that it "represents another forward step in efficient service to our community." It will attract new customers, aid persons living in the West Windsor area and feature such important bank facilities as an auto teller and adequate space, he observed.

In 1955, the chairman stated, "our deposits increased over $2,000,000 above the close of last year (1954). Our continued growth not only reflects an expanding community, but a forward and progressive outlook on the part of our board of directors and operating staff. We have always strived to meet all modern needs of our many varied clientele, and look with pride to our many old friends and new associations who have found it pleasant and profitable to be with us."

Mr. Hoff, long interested in Princeton's growth and a former three-term mayor, lauded the bank's work, emphasizing that "it was a pleasure to participate extensively during the past year in financing our public institutions. It has always been our policy to help promote the local welfare whenever possible, and to hold sufficient reserves available for public purposes when required."

Bank Ranks High. In his report, Mr. Poe said, "We try to run a community bank, and the measure of our success is the extent to which we can fulfill needs and desires, and help our friends attain their hopes or relieve their fears." He admitted the bank was delighted it ranks "comfortably" within the first thousand of the country's 15,000 banks, despite "few large organizations in our area which carry big accounts," but he noted that First National was much more delighted with the number of persons asking the bank to help them with their affairs.

"It is the total volume of transactions," he explained, "rather than their dollar amount which, we believe, tells the true story of the confidence the community has in us, and which we shall ever strive to justify."

To underscore his "transactions" point, Mr. Poe reported that "the steadily expanding Princeton community has been reflected in a corresponding increase in our balance sheet figures." He said the bank's total balance at the close of 1955 business was $27,660,000, a jump of $2,679,000 over the previous year, and, to complete his comparison, a tremendous hike of $21,896,000 over 1935, the year Mr. Poe joined First National.

With the increase in total figures has gone a corresponding increase in activity," the president declared. "During the year, we handled some two and one-half million individual checks and deposits, in connection with the 10,156 savings accounts and 8,120 checking accounts on our books." Among other totals, Mr. Poe cited: "Use of our Friday evening opening period increased from a high of 780 transactions in one two-hour period in 1954 to a high of 1,081 in 1955, with the average weekly number increasing from 641 to 844."

Praising the bank's staff for its continued efforts during 1955, Mr. Poe said significant growth in virtually every department was recorded. He mentioned particularly the loan department, with a grand total of all loans and advances now amounting to nearly $10,000,000, observing that "the loan portfolio is clean, the advances are well-protected by collateral, adequate financial responsibility and/or earning power, and the total reflects the degree to which we have been able to take care of the needs of the community and its people."

"There remains the important question of our earnings," Mr. Poe concluded. "This past year, our net operating earnings were $195,459, an increase of approximately $25,000 over 1954." He said a net of $91,762 remained after providing for estimated income taxes, a small reserve for possible bad debts and write-downs on furniture and fixtures and other assets. Of this net, $50,000 was added to the undivided profits account and $42,000 was set aside for cash dividends.

It's New to Us

Have a Fit. In the time that she has spent fitting clothes to women—or fitting women into clothes—Mary Gonzales has discovered something that is, perhaps, not so new after all: most women do not have a perfect figure. A dressmaker who likes to see her works of art look their best, Mrs. Gonzales is pained by figure. A dressmaker who likes to see her works of art look their best, Mrs. Gonzales is pained by figure. A dressmaker who likes to see her works of art look their best, Mrs. Gonzales is pained by figure.

In Mrs. Gonzales' sample book, we saw girdles for every size and shape, but mostly garments for heavy women who need the firmness of line that a good foundation can supply. Some D-cup bras, for example, are cut with a high back that gives more comfort than a standard cut in that size. There are also maternity girdles, and specially constructed corsets for various figure problems.

Some fabrics are heavy, as you might guess, but others are gossamer dacton, embroidered marquette, or cotton eyelet.

You may call Mrs. Gonzales at Princeton 1-5015 for an appointment, or you may ask her to come to your house. She will take your measurements and then choose the size that comes closest to your requirements. If necessary, the girdles can be lengthened or shortened, so that they are almost custom-made. Prices vary widely, of course, but they seem to fall generally in the middle brackets.

Southern Express. Those who plan to lead the gay life after they've staked out a palm tree, will find a wardrobe geared to gaiety at The French Shop, 20 Nassau.

The first dress we saw was a flame-colored chiffon, just to give you an idea. It has short sleeves, a wide round plain neck and a shirred bodice that extends to a longish waistline. Very full skirt.

Another chiffon that comes in flame or turquoise has a bodice completely covered with half-inch vertical tucks. Neckline is round, arms are bare. Chiffon goes modern in a scratch print that is basically flame or gold. Shirred waist again, and a cloud of skirt.

A sundress in gingham has embroidered nosegays on it. The skirt cascades in three tiers. A white pique princess sundress is piped in pink. Shades of rose and violet! They appear together in var-sized squares, separated by half-inch bands of white. The dress is a cotton.

Acetate combines with cotton in a sleeveless sheath with brief jacket. It's navy or toast, with a sparkling white shawl collar and pearl buttons. Acetate appears alone in a full-skirted print dress

Sidewalk superintendents who have worked it all out and decided that the Junior and Prep Shop isn't gaining an inch of space by moving from Chambers to Palmer Square—these gentlemen are wrong. An additional 200 square feet of space comes with the new quarters at 69 Palmer Square West, and 200 square feet will hold a lot of shirts.

The old quarters on Chambers Street were closed on Wednesday at 5:30, and the new store will open next Monday, January 16.

New cocoa-colored walls (resistant to young finger smudges), new green cabinets made by Mr. Servis himself, a new music system to fill these extra 200 square feet with cheerful music—the new location will have all these innovations, plus the same personnel and the same size and age range in boys clothing.

At the moment, stock includes good wind-resistant winter clothes, as well as tropical slacks and light-weight suits.

with lace down its front and around its collarless neckline. The same print lines a jersey jacket.

Try on a sundress of heavy cotton in an East India print, laced with gold. It is straight and dramatic, with a brilliant top band and back bow of tangerine satin.

If you're looking for silk, The French Shop has a print in gold that holds its flaring skirt for a while with pin tucks all around the waist and hip line. She shows up again in a dress of slate grey that could be worn up north in the spring.

McMullen has a "Town Suit": a spring-weight cotton in slate with black and white slub weave. Its jacket has a white collar and short sleeves.

The French Shop is particularly excited about the new bathing suits by Schiaparelli. There's a striped dotted Swiss that will spend most of its time showing off on the beach. It has quarter-inch wide ruffles of white lace at the leg, neckline and wherever it seems to be becoming.

Another suit that looks more business-like, is made of a fabric that looks like faille. It is a tropical turquoise with shirring down the front. A beige suit looks almost like linen.

chased outright by a member of a well-known Princeton family, Frank Petriferino, 237 Mt. Lucas Road. The new owner will continue business without interruption, despite plans already under way for improvements in the store's food policy and decorative renovations.

Mr. Petriferino said he planned to retain Borden's line of ice cream, milk, cream and butter, but would make marked changes in the rest of the restaurant's menu. "We want to give people what they like, and we want them to know that's what they will get whenever they trade with us," he declared.

Explaining that he was lucky to obtain good, experienced employees for his new venture, Mr. Petriferino said the eatery will feature expanded hours under his management. The restaurant will be open from 8 a.m. to 11 p.m. Tuesday through Sunday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. each Monday.

This will be the first experience in the restaurant business for Mr. Petriferino, who has been a member of the Princeton post office staff for the past three years. He will be assisted by his wife, who has been associated with several similar businesses in recent years.

Property's Future In Doubt. Long-range plans for 8½ acres of property within Princeton Borough's eastern limits, blue-printed for an elaborate apartment project until the Borough Planning Board denied necessary zoning changes, remained in doubt this week with none of the interested parties predicting any definite.

Mrs. Robert B. Loomis, 302 Nassau Street, owner of a long, rectangular strip of the proposed project land extending from Nassau Street to Spruce Street, said the matter might appear before the board "at a future date" to discuss hardships involved in developing her unhandy-shaped acreage. A spokesman for Ewing Inc., which owns the rest of the "P"-shaped property, including the abandoned Spruce Street quarry and land stretching to North Harrison Street, said his group hoped to re-negotiate later, though he was unable to outline any specific approach.

Meanwhile, Louis H. Cahan Jr. of Trenton's Louis H. Cahan Construction Company, which sought to develop the 166-apartment project, indicated that the board had just about forced his father's company out of the picture. He said lowering of density requirements by cutting the number of apartments, in order to meet near-medium zoning qualifications, was economically impossible from the Cahan firm's point of view.

"Princeton seems to have a real need for such housing," Mr. Cahan commented, "but there

The Eyes of Taxes

Despite a proposed Township school budget of $617,995, representing a record increase of 46.2% over last year's total figure, only 10 taxpayers appeared at the Valley Road School Tuesday night for the public hearing on the budget. They were flanked by nine school officials.

The inquisitive 10 were given an expenditure-by-expenditure account of the all-inclusive outlay and they countered with good questions pertaining to it, but there were no loud cries of opposition to any of the much-studied costs. This latter fact, plus the small turnout, left board members with the definite impression that Township residents realize the economic demands of a growing educational system and are ready to pay for them.

The annual school budget election for the Township will be held February 14, the same date as the Borough system's vote. Meanwhile, the Borough will hold a public hearing on its $1,046,171 school budget at 8 p.m. Wednesday at Princeton High School.

doesn't seem to be any possible way to get the apartments built. It's a crime, but I guess that's the way the Princeton planners want it."

Several persons closely involved in the negotiations admitted being displeased by the fact that the Planning Board flatly denied the zoning changes last week after telling the concerned parties that no decision would be reached until later, thereby causing them to skip attendance at the decisive meeting. Board members countered by saying that they didn't first intend to render their verdict last week, but the decision appeared so obvious that they could see no sense in prolonging their unanimous vote.

Gas Leaks Found. Belief that residences in the Murray Place-Princeton Avenue area may soon be relieved of bothersome gasoline fumes was confirmed this week by the Borough Engineer's Office following discovery and elimination of leaks in two Sunoco storage tanks. Some nine homes have been plagued by gas odors, caused by gasoline seeping underground into their basement drains, since Thanksgiving time. At considerable cost to its parent company, the Sunoco station, Nassau Street at Murray Place, conducted extensive hydrostatic tests and located small leaks in two of its three 2,000-gallon underground tanks. The tanks were drained and filled with sand for safety, and plans were made immediately for installation of two new 4,000-gallon tanks behind the station.

News of the Theatres

McCARTER THEATRE

A major reason for interest in the forthcoming premiere of "The Innkeepers" this weekend at the McCarter lies in the teaming for the second time of two rising performers, Geraldine Page and Darren McGavin.

As a romantic team they made a deep impression in "The Rainmaker" of last season, and in the new Theodore Apstein play they appear as a husband and wife who have taken themselves to Oaxaca, Mexico, to run a tourist hostel after having left Washington, D. C., following a "security risk" dismissal.

Both Miss Page and Mr. McGavin have seen their stars shoot up in the past few years. Miss Page, after apprenticing by working in a thread factory, checking hats, tending a switchboard and ushering in a theatre following graduation from Chicago's Goodman Theatre School, has captured acclaim by excelling in "Summer and Smoke," "Mid-Summer," "The Immoralist" and then "The Rainmaker." She recently co-starred with John Wayne in the film "Hondo."

Mr. McGavin lists along with credits in leading Broadway productions, performances with Katherine Hepburn in "Summertime," and in "The Court Martial of Billy Mitchell" and "The Man With the Golden Arm" in his three screen ventures.

Miss Page and Mr. McGavin will be supported by a cast that includes Boris Tamarin, a member of the faculty of the American Theatre Wing with five recent Broadway appearances as well as directional chores, Joe Maross and others, including a group of native actors from Mexico. Jose Quintero is directing the cast for the Gordon Pollock production.

The Seminary's theatre group was established in 1954 as the Merlin Theatre by students, faculty and staff members interested in the religious and ethical implications of dramatic literature. They are concerned also with the use of the stage as vital organ of social and cultural expression in stimulating critical thought.

Previous productions include that of Reginald Rose's "Twelve Angry Men" last May at the First Presbyterian Church. The forth-

BUDAPEST QUARTET
The revised edition of the Budapest String Quartet made its first local appearances a week ago Wednesday and again Monday night at McCarter Theater. Alexander Schneider is now playing second violin with Josef Roismann, Boris Kroyt and Mischa Schneider, first violin, viola and cello, respectively. And certainly the group has pulled itself out of the doldrums it has been in recently and has nearly become again the fabulous Budapest of old.
More accurately, this would better be said of the second concert at which Nathan Gordon, violist, joined the group in a program of string quintets. It was as if the rich, fuller texture of the quintet was more suited to its full bow, full vibrato style of performance. Wednesday's program of quartets certainly suffered somewhat from this over-emphasis on full, rich tone with its natural concomitants: dragging tempi and heaviness, particularly in the lighter movements.

These faults were most disturbing in the opening work of the first concert, Haydn's "Emperor" Quartet in C Major, Opus 76, No. 3. A Haydn minuet has a good deal of "thump-thump-thump" in it, to be sure, but this does not mean it should be leaden. This one never really got thumping at all and as a result the more delicate sustained quality of the Trio was hardly noticeable as contrast at all.
Furthermore, the tempo was certainly too slow. Though this movement was the principal casualty, the outer movements also suffered in this way from being "overdone." Only the lovely slow movement, the hymn variations that give the quartet its nickname, escaped; or rather, this type of performance was more appropriate to the lyric lines of the movement.

The same remarks apply to the performance of the Beethoven F Major Quartet, Opus 59, No. 1, although in a much lesser degree. Beethoven is more to their taste and their interpretative mood served to put more of the music across. Nevertheless, the scherzo was slow and heavy-footed and the outer movements were not much above ordinary. As in the Haydn, the exception was the slow movement which was, and for the same reasons, most moving. The moral is, you can't play everything, even the different movements of the same work, in the same way.

The remainder of the first concert was taken up with Schubert works: The "Quartetsatz" in C Minor and a group of German dances. Schubert certainly fared best that evening; the haunting single movement in C Minor received its full measure.
It was a fine interpretation which benefited from the liveliness and variety of the string playing, qualities that were strangely missing elsewhere in the evening. The German dances, the novelty of the evening, were pretty enough. They turned out to be, not five dances as advertised, but a number of sets of tunes probably arranged from Schubert's piano dances. The main trouble was there were too many of them all cast in a similar mold.

Monday's performances were much more on the line of the "Quartetsatz." They were also devoted to music of the classic period, two of the works being quite unfamiliar. Both were however well worth hearing.

The gem was a Mozart Quintet in C Major, K. 515 which is unquestionably a masterpiece.

Leontyne Price

Not quite such a revelation was a Beethoven C Major Quintet, opus 29 which however, particularly in its final two movements, is an excellent piece of chamber music. Perhaps the first two movements would have made more of an impression if they hadn't come right on the heels of the Mozart work which is surely one of his finest compositions.

The performances of these works along with that of the evening's final composition, the familiar G Minor Quintet of Mozart, were of the highest caliber. Richness and expressiveness were here used to good purpose and the variety of color, tone and phrasing proved that the group is as capable of the finest interpretations as ever.

The only exception was the slow movement of the Mozart C Major which was, once again, "over-emoted." But perhaps this is carping; that sort of thing is always more permissible in a slow movement. In any case, it was a small weakness in a fine evening of music-making.

MCCARTER THEATRE
Leontyne Price, one of this country's leading sopranos, will give the second concert in Series I of the Princeton University Concerts this Tuesday evening, January 17, at 8:30 in McCarter Theatre.

Miss Price's program here will include songs by Handel, Gluck, Poulenc, Massenet, Puccini and Samuel Barber, as well as a number of negro spirituals.

Tickets for the concert are now on sale at the Princeton University Store (tel. 3333) and will be available at the box office Tuesday evening.

Miss Price is a native of Laurel, Mississippi. After becoming proficient as a pianist, she attended college in Wilberforce, Ohio, and then won a scholarship to the Juilliard School of Music.

Her rise since graduation from Juilliard has been meteoric. The one event which has done more than anything else to focus international attention on Miss Price was her singing and dramatic performance as Bess in the revival of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess". She won acclaim as she toured this country and Europe from June 1952 to June 1954 in the folk opera.

Miss Price made her New York debut as a soloist in November 1954, receiving praise such as that from Jay S. Harrison of the Herald Tribune, who said: "her singing unquestionably puts her squarely in the top ranks of concert artists. She is every inch an

Young Pianists Audition
Five young Princeton musicians, all girls, will audition on Friday before a committee composed of Nicholas Harsanyi, conductor of the Princeton Symphony, Mrs. Roy D. Welch and Thomas G. Cook. The winning performer will play with the Princeton Symphony in a concert sponsored by the Rotary Club of Princeton on February 18.
The girls to be auditioned (ranging in age from 5½ to 15) are: Catherine Christian, 13, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. M. Christian, 15 Hawthorne Avenue; Carol Hirsch, 10, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Hirsch, 179 Riverside Drive; Barbara Kleinberg, 11, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William Kleinberg, 50 Woodland Drive; Maija Merzinskis, 15, daughter of E. Merzinskis, 22 Moore Street, and Mary Trifan, 5½, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Trifan, 411-B Devreux Avenue.

artist, every bit a true performer. She has enormous capacity for projecting a personality that literally spills charm over the footlights—a goddess performing among us."

Miss Price has since appeared in countless recitals and solo appearances with such major symphonic organizations as the Philadelphia Orchestra, the Boston Symphony and the New York Philharmonic. Her performance as Tosca in the two-hour television presentation of the opera was acclaimed as a triumph a year ago.

MUSICAL AMATEURS
The Princeton Society of Musical Amateurs under the direction of Professor J. Merrill Knapp will meet with orchestra this Sunday evening, January 15, at 5:15 in Miss Fine's School.
The program will consist of Verdi's "Requiem". Soloists will be Virginia Switten, soprano; Thelma Young, contralto; Harold S. Powers, tenor, and Fadlou Shehadi, bass.
The meeting is open to all who wish to take part. Reservations for supper should be made by calling Mrs. McKenty Bryan at 1-0453 between 2 and 4:30 p.m. by this Friday.

Sunoco estimated gas losses at about one gallon per hour, pointing out that they probably were not noticed because they occurred only while gasoline was being pumped.

The Borough Engineer's Office reported that odors from the gas fumes already were diminishing, though it was noted that fumes early this week may have intensified the strength of the fumes and it may be some time before all traces have run their course. In case the Sunoco leaks were not fully responsible for the odor annoyance, the municipal department continued its efforts to remove all other possible sources.

Arnold Ryden, Borough staff member in charge of the gas investigation, said most of the other Nassau Street service stations have completed tests, with negative results. Esso is still trying to write itself a clean bill of health, he explained, going ahead with tests because its tanks have been losing pressure but no leaks can be uncovered.

Mr. Ryden said he completed time-consuming "bar hole tests" throughout the afflicted area, probing from four to seven feet beneath the earth's surface for seeping gas, but was unable to hit the water table, even drilling as deep as 15 feet. He credited Charles Oliver and a Public Service crew of five men with making the difficult rod tests possible.

Salk Shots; Zoning Request. State supplies of Salk anti-polio vaccine will be available in the Township by the end of January at least, Dr. William-Kleinberg, Township health officer, told the board of health at its meeting Monday evening.

Dr. Kleinberg said he had received the assurance from state officials, presumably ending several months of uncertainty over the Salk program. He was authorized to proceed with the program through the school system.

The Township Committee heard a request for an amendment to the new zoning ordinance which would remove the restriction against bars in the Princeton Shopping Center business zone.

Theodore Tams, Jr., attorney for Charles and Co., made the request on behalf of his client, which seeks to locate a "cocktail lounge-package store" at the center. He presented a petition signed by 110 in support.

An artist's sketch of the proposed establishment showed seating space for 12 persons at small tables, with the majority of space given over to display racks and package sale operation. Mr. Tams told the committee that his client has an option to buy the Class "C" plenary retail consumption license from the estate of Antonio Perone, 9 Birch Avenue, as well as an option to lease space between the Princeton Bank and Trust branch and Schaeffer's Delectables at the Shopping Center.

Mr. Tams also said that Charles J. Freericks, 351 State Road, was the majority stockholder in the company, and would plan to operate the business himself. He is currently associated with a New York advertising firm. The business would follow the wishes of the committee in adjusting its hours of operation.

Mayor Wallace advised that the committee will discuss whether or not to submit a proposed zoning amendment to the Planning Board on the question. It is expected that work on the annual budget may postpone a decision for some weeks.

Other Township Business. Mayor Wallace announced that the meeting time for the governing body's public sessions has been pushed back to 8:30 p.m., half an hour later than it has been.

He also spelled out the committee's re-studied policy on the reading of letters to the committee. Mayor Wallace said that the committee would review and determine letters to be read aloud at meetings, but that the writer of any letter might request from the floor that his be read if it was not among those taken up publicly.

A temporary budget for the first quarter amounting to $68,488 (some 13% ahead of last year) was adopted. Action was initiated to include Mountain Avenue —Continued on Page 8—and Morgan Place in the garbage collection route. The traffic ordinance governing "stop" streets and Birch Avenue parking was re-introduced by the new committee, with the hearing set for the February meeting.

Borough Report. The Borough Council had not been in session for more than a minute Tuesday before it came face-to-face with a problem fraught with potential complications; should it hire M.F. Anderson to collect garbage for another 12 months for $20,000, a $3,000 increase over last year in the face of a report that last garbage was collected in 1953 than in '54. Mr. Anderson will have to wait two weeks before the governing body reaches a decision, but he is secure in the knowledge that no one else is interested in performing the odorous if well-paid task.

Council also heard that: the year was marked by only 12 general alarms for the fire department, with police quelling most of the 73 other minor blazes; that the sum of $603 spent for welfare purposes during December was the highest monthly total in more than three years; and that the total of $3,589,000 undertaken in construction was the second highest in borough history. Such structures as the Seminary's Speer Memorial Library, the Catholic church and parish house and the expanded high school made it a near-record year.

Poll On Eisenhower Attacked. Another Princeton research firm made national headlines this week with the release of figures from a poll of heart specialists on President Eisenhower's fitness for a second term following his heart attack. The feature story in U.S. News and World Report, the article was based on statistics and replies to a survey taken for the magazine by Benson & Benson, Inc.

Reproduction of the questionnaire used shows the survey to have been conducted by the "American Research Foundation," a name that U.S. News terms a "hind to avoid possibility of bias if those polled learn by whom the survey is actually being conducted." The address given is "33 Witherspoon Street (the Benson Building), with the added tongue-in-cheek designation, "Princeton 2, N. J."

Results of the survey quote 60% of those giving definite replies as believing that the President can serve a second term. Answer to another question showed 64% of the opinion that a heart attack need be no deterrent to another four years in the White House. The Journal of the American Medical Association attacked the poll as "fit only for the wastebasket," declaring that "the questions are very definitely slanted politically" and that "consultation without examination is absurd."

The Nemesis of Pegasus. When Socony-Mobil Oil Company transformed its colonial-style service station at 225 Nassau Street into an ultra-modern structure three winters ago, some Borough officials were horrified by the face-lifting job. But the transformation appeared to be a consequence of Twentieth Century progress—so on the went, complete with a flock of stationary and mobile signs.

Then, the company made the mistake of really alienating Borough leaders by adorning the front of its new building with a large "flying red horse," an 8.5-foot by 6-foot pegasus in violation of several zoning ordinance stipulations. Work on the structure was ordered to a halt until Socony-Mobil removed its traditional symbol in February, 1953. The oil company appealed the matter of its so-called "larger horse" to the zoning board of adjustment, but the board refused to grant an exception and advised Socony-Mobil to seek decorative advice from "Operation Nassau," a group of Princeton volunteers dedicated to keeping Nassau Street beautiful through anti-ultra - modernistic steps. Apparently, the company and volunteer organization never got together, nor did the company receive permission from the board to raise its so-called "smaller horse," a pint-sized pegasus about 4 by 3.

For some of the time between the fall of 1953 and June, 1954, according to records maintained by Borough Engineer I. Russell Riker, secretary of the zoning board, the "smaller horse" was back in position atop the service station. In June, 1954, it was replaced by the "larger horse," though the Borough was never advised of the switching of horses. In mid-year.

Too Big and Too High. This Tuesday afternoon, in municipal court, Mr. Riker charged Socony-Mobil and the station's two Princeton tenants, Charles J. Rocknak, 35 Harrison Street, and Archer M. Vaughn, Alexander Road, with violation of the zoning ordinance. He explained that the pesky pegasus, still riding the station, was too big (more than 50 square feet as opposed to the ordinance's prescribed 20); too high (it should not extend above the roof) and, for good measure, too much (there should be only one sign, and the station already has several permissible, non-conforming standards).

Mr. Rocknak, president of the Borough Council and well-aware of the zoning violation, contended that he and Mr. Vaughn were bound by company policy. The company wanted the horse on the station, so the company put it up, he testified. Mr. Vaughn said he doubted if Socony-Mobil would have changed its mind, even if he and Mr. Rocknak had objected.

Harry Pfitzinger, representative of Socony-Mobil from Camden, told Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro that he was not familiar with the Princeton situation, but assured the magistrate that the "larger horse" was standard company equipment, flying atop half of the organization's 45,000 stations. "Unfortunately, we do not have the same type of zoning ordinances all over the country," Henry M. Stratton, Borough prosecutor, observed.

Magistrate Chesebro, expressing some concern over the fact that the pegasus has been flying here so long without the Borough issuing its complaints before this week, gave Mr. Pfitzinger two weeks to comply with the zoning ordinance by dismounting the red horse. The company representative concurred, and announced plans to go before the board of adjustment regarding the "smaller horse."

Unofficially, Mr. Riker said he thought some horse-trading might be possible—perhaps even a "flying red horse" in place of several of the permissible, non-conforming standards.

Reckless Driver Fined. Charged with operating his auto with "wanton disregard of the rights of others," Charles M. Kuop, 24 Dickinson Street, was found guilty of reckless driving in Borough Court at this week's session. Magistrate Paul R. Chesebro fined him $35 and dispatched a recommendation that the motorist's California license be revoked for at least two months.

Edward Clothier, 92 Moore Street, was found innocent of a charge of careless driving after Sgt. Charles J. Anderson, the investigating officer, testified that a post-accident examination indicated it was likely the defendant side-swiped a telephone pole without driving in careless fashion, as the officer first suspected. Mr. Chesebro lauded Mr. Clothier for 40 years of driving without a mishap.

In other action, the magistrate imposed a fine of $14 on Mrs. Ilse M. Thompson, 874 Kingston Road, for passing through a red light. Armand Hoog, 18 Dorann Avenue, paid a similar fine out-of-court for the same offense.

Workshop in Leadership. A leadership workshop to be sponsored Saturday by the Y-Teen Program Committee of the YWCA will hear a talk on "How Can We Meet the Needs of Teenagers." The session will begin at 10 Saturday morning in the conference room of the First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Sara-Alyce Wright, member of the Leadership Service Unit of the national YWCA, will be the speaker. Mrs. E. Harris Harbison will open the program with a talk on "Background of Y-Teens Nationally."

Others to be heard will be Dr. Richard P. Wang and the Rev. W. H. Critz, both of Princeton. The workshop has been planned by Mrs. William Sword, for the specific assistance of volunteer leaders in church, school, club and other community groups in this area.

Heading for Roundup, Two nine-year members of the Princeton Girl Scout Council, Carol Anderson of Troop 13 and Sandra Black of Mariner Ship 15, have been chosen to represent their council at a Senior Roundup for nationwide Girl Scouts in Michigan this coming summer. The experienced campers were selected on the basis of their troop leaders' ratings, estimates of the other members of their troops and their personal estimates of their own camping skills.

Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Anderson, Mr. Lucas Road, and Sandra, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Constantino Black, 45 Stanley Avenue, will join an eight-member patrol with girls from the Trenton Girl Scout Council. Some 100 of these patrols, from Region II (New Jersey and New York) will participate in the Roundup's varied activities.

According to Roundup planners, this year's camping project will be the first large-scale primitive operation ever attempted by the national Girl Scout organization. Over 4,000 outstanding girls, between the ages of 14 and 18, will attend the elaborate, two-week session.

Representing all sections of the country, the Roundup participants will be required to bring with them tokens of their particular community's history, traditions and examples of its contributions to American culture. Through this emphasis on Americana, Roundup leaders hope to provide the Girl Scouts with a deeper appreciation of the scope, variety and strength of United States heritage.

Princeton's two Roundup representatives, Carol and Sandra, were picked by a selections committee consisting of Mrs. Alag Carrick, council president; Mrs. Robert Herling, Mrs. Beverly Hubbard and Mrs. W. Bruce Mather. Both girls are juniors at Princeton High School.

Two other qualified Senior Scouts also were chosen by the selections committee as alternates to the Roundup. They are PHS sophomores Sandra Wayner, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Wayner, Lake Drive, and Carolyn Page, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Page, 273 Hamilton Avenue.

Topic of Importance. A vital discussion subject, "Housing Problems of Minority Groups," will be offered by the Council of Community Services when it holds its next meeting at 8:15 p.m. January 19 in the assembly room of the First Presbyterian Church. Sponser for the public session will be Dr. John P. Milligan, assistant commissioner of education for the New Jersey Division against Discrimination.

During a previous speaking engagement in Princeton, Dr. Milligan told his audience that New Jersey is one of eight states which have civil rights laws with enforcement provisions. Most important of these provisions, he noted,

Course Still Open

As a result of an unprecedented demand for instruction in Spanish conversation, members of the Princeton Adult School committee have decided to offer a second class in the subject, contrary to information supplied to many persons who tried in vain to enroll in the class. The second class will be limited to 20 students, like its already-filled running mate. Princetonians interested in registering for the newly added class may do so by appearing at the first session of the course at 8 p.m. this Thursday, Princeton High School, or at the second session on January 19. All adult courses will get under way this Thursday and will continue for 10 consecutive Thursday evenings.

is his division, established in 1945, which employs 10 field workers to investigate all complaints of discrimination in employment or accommodation.

According to Dr. Milligan, some 12,000 cases were investigated during the first 10 years of the division's operation, and in 80% of the accommodation cases checked, a real basis for complaint was found. He stressed also that independent research has proved that house sales to minority groups do not depress real estate values, though many persons have been reluctant to accept the findings of these studies.

FAMILIAR FIGURES: Children everywhere know of Robin Hood and Maid Marian, who'll be in Princeton next Wednesday, to open the Children's Entertainment Series at McCarter Theatre. Members of the cast are from the Travelling Playhouse.

coming production is the first planned for the current season and involves the efforts of some 60 members of the Seminary community, including a cast of 20.

"Saint Joan" is considered by some to be Shaw's finest play. It deals with the heroic and clear-thinking efforts of Joan of Arc in bringing the French victory over the English, while at the same time creating a problem for the church and the throne, leading to her burning.

There is no admission charge in accord with Seminary custom, but voluntary contributions from the audience will be asked to cover the cost of production, which includes a high royalty.

CHILDREN'S SERIES

The 24th season of the Children's Entertainment Series sponsored by the Borough Elementary Schools PTA will open this Wednesday, January 18, with a performance of "Robin Hood" by the Travelling Playhouse.

The presentation by the theatre group will start at 3:30 p.m. in McCarter Theatre. Tickets may be obtained for the entire four-production series or single performances by writing Mrs. John T. McLaughlin, ticket chairman, at 49 Allison Road. The McCarter box office will open at 1:00 p.m. on Wednesday.

Ticket prices for the series are $3.50, $2.50 and $1.50. Programs to be offered after "Robin Hood" include "Greensleeves," February 13; "The Wizard of Oz," February 27; and a performance by the children's group of the Princeton Ballet Society on May 11.

The Travelling Playhouse will present all three of the plays in the series. The organization is a group of adult actors who specialize in children's theatre for young people in the first to eighth grades in schools.

COMMUNITY PLAYERS

A detective story, a fantasy and a comedy comprise the next dramatic offering of the Princeton Community Players, with a bill of one-act plays to be presented for four evenings from January 25 through 28 at Murray Theatre on the University Campus. The first play will present "The Crime" by John Weikel, "Land of Heart's Desire" by William Butler Yeats and "The Anniversary" by Anton Chekov.

"The Crime," written in 1950 and described as a mystery in both medieval and modern-day crime detection senses, will be directed by Mrs. Clare Radocyte, who has been the filming of the play shortly after its production at Swarthmore College. Members of the cast will include Al Goodman as Adam Prior, Mrs. Sue Frick as Eve Prior, Frank Schmetz as the butler and Edward Bissell as the detective.

"The Yeats' fantasy is set in 18th Century Ireland. It will be directed by Mr. Schmetz, with the cast including Mrs. Nancy Southgate as Maire Bruin, the young wife who delivers her household to the spies abroad on May Eve; James Hopkins as a priest; Mr. Schmetz as the husband Mr. Ansell as the father-in-law; Toni Dugan as the mother-in-law and Kathy Kelly as the feisty child.

Lubomir Radocyte will direct the Chekov comedy "The Anniversary." Lorin Zissman will play the board chairman of a bank; Carlotta Sherwood, his wife; Mr. Hopkins, a cashier; Dorothy Thomas, an old woman; and Kurt Weiser, leader of the anniversary delegation.

Technical staff for the one-acts will include Mr. Zissman, production chairman; Byron Keenan and James Hopkins, scenery; Peter Van Zandt, lighting; Miss Dugan, costumes; Mrs. Thomas Potter, properties; Mrs. Erling Port, make-up; Phoebe Glick, theatre manager, and Louise Smith, publicity.

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Court Marshal of Billy Mitchell (Jan. 12-13) is an outstanding picture about the outstanding general who struggled to make America conscious of air power. His story is told with stark simplicity and leaving out fake facts, romance, etc., has improved the quality of the film immensely. Gary Cooper, naturally, gives a fine portrayal of Mitchell, and other good performers include Ralph Bellamy, Charles Bickford and Rod Steiger. Color, CinemaScope.

The Indian Fighter (Jan. 15-18) has a rather standard story, but it is well handled and performed, chiefly by Kirk Douglas, who plays the experienced scout and friend of the Indians. Also with Elsa Martinelli, Walter Abel, Walter Mattau, Lon Chaney, Alan Hale Jr., and others. The striking Oregon backgrounds are filmed in CinemaScope and Technicolor. Note the extra day of playing time.

The African Lion (Jan. 19-21) is the latest in Walt Disney's splendid Tru-Life Adventure Series. The newest feature documentary in the series is a bit more routine than its predecessors, chiefly because of the subject matter, which is more familiar. The Technicolor film, produced from three years of photographing are fine, however. Playing with it is Disney's cartoon version of "Peter and the Wolf," plus a short on the circus, "Behind the Big Top."

THE GARDEN

A Man Called Peter (Jan. 12) is playing a return engagement. Richard Todd stars as the Presbyterian minister Peter Marshall, delivering a number of his sermons in the course of biographical treatment. Also with Jean Peters and Marguerite Rameau, in CinemaScope and color.

The Vanishing American (Jan. 12-13) reduces the Lone Gray legend about the struggle of the Navajo Indians for their land in the face of renegade white men and treacherous Apaches. Scott Brady, Audrey Totter and Forrest Tucker are featured in a standard western action drama. No color.

NOT KING OF THE CIVILIZED FRONTIER: Despite millions of dollars' worth of publicity, the magic of Walt Disney, a best-selling song, a phenomenal TV rating and his American heritage, Davy Crockett isn't any more popular today than Robin Hood, his dashing predecessor from medieval England. That's the considered opinion of a group of Princeton fifth graders, shown discussing the two heroes with their teacher, Philip Cobb. Preparing for a spirited debate on the comparison are (left to right) Carol Beth Evans, Diana Forbes, Fred Stroup, Isabel Vreeland, Cheryl Lewis, Edwin Mueller, Lynette Palmer, David Redding and Charles Brungard. For their critical answers to Question of the Week, read below. (Richards Photo)

Question of the Week

Question: How does Robin Hood stack up against Davy Crockett? (Suggested by Mrs. Norman Williams Jr., 74 Allison Road, with a reminder that the Travelling Playhouse's production of "Robin Hood" will be presented at 3:30 p.m. Wednesday in McCarter Theatre).

Location: Nassau Street Elementary School.

Carol Beth Evans, 87 Jefferson Road: Davy's legend has grown and grown recently, and now we're supposed to think he was the "greatest." It's sort of silly when you think of it, especially killing "a bar" when he was only three. Both Robin and Davy adapted themselves well in the wilderness and were quite a bit alike, but I prefer to read about Robin Hood. He was much more adventurous and glamorous. I don't particularly like the commercial things they have done with Davy, and, what's worse, he never gets caught in the stories about him.

Lynette Palmer, 117½ Nassau Street: Both men were heroic and both have had many things made up about them by theatre people, including the addition of close pals to give their tales more interest. In history, Davy was more important—he encouraged men to be brave and kept them from deserting at the Alamo—but I like Robin Hood better. Maybe that's because the sheriff is always chasing him, making stories about him more exciting. In the funny papers I read, Davy never does anything wrong—that's not right, and it's another reason why I like Robin Hood better.

David Redding, 39 Linden Lane: There's no comparison between the two as far as I'm concerned. Robin Hood is by far the best. There's real excitement in his story. Davy has been built up for advertising. They show three minutes of action about him on television, then spend all the rest of the time selling Davy Crockett products!

Diana Forbes, 85 Moore Street: The song says Davy Crockett was born on a mountain top, but that's not true—and there are many other points that aren't real, either. For instance, on TV, Davy knows everything and always wins—he doesn't seem like a real hero. Both men were good leaders and both were brave and both saved people—Robin Hood even saved some of his own band. Even though all the stories about him aren't true, I guess Davy was the most important.

Edwin Mueller, 155 Hamilton Avenue: Both grew up in the Academic Boomerang

When Principal Chester R. Stroup told one of his teachers, Philip Cobb, that Town Topics' inquiring reporter was coming to the Nassau Street school to ask students a Question of the Week about Robin Hood vs. Davy Crockett, the fifth grade instructor promptly sent his charges home with instructions to do some overnight research on the two washbucklers.

That evening, encyclopedias all over Princeton were opened to pages under "C" and "R" that revealed many well-known and little-known items concerning the storied pair. Naturally, parents of the pupils were quizzed about the two heroic figures, with varying degrees of responsive success.

As recorded elsewhere on this page, one of the busy, young researchers was Fred Stroup of 111 Jefferson Road. Accordingly, one of the quizzed—and somewhat surprised parents—was Principal Stroup, who had no idea his words to Mr. Cobb would take such a close-to-home turn. (Ed. note: The principal learned things about Davy and Robin that were new to him and still unrecognized by movie and TV writers.)

wilderness, both stood for the same ideas and there's much exaggeration connected with both. I'd rather watch Robin Hood on TV. He's more appealing and does the kind of things I like—he gets into more adventures.

Fred Stroup, 111 Jefferson Road: I feel that Davy was more important in history than Robin, mainly because Davy was a true person and Robin was not real. Robin's idea of taking from the rich and giving to the poor was a good one, but it was just an example in a fairy tale. Davy, on the other hand, actually encouraged American pioneers and helped build America into a strong country.

Isabel Vreeland, 17 Alken Avenue: I've done some research on Robin Hood, and I believe he's a fairy tale. He never fights in front of women—I like that. If it wasn't for the fact that Robin was made up and Davy Crockett was a real person, I would say that Robin was the most important of the two. I'm more interested in him than Davy. But I suppose Davy was really the most important.

Charles Brungard, 66 Linden Lane: Robin stacks up pretty darned well, I think. He was a more exciting character and, even if he wasn't real, he seems more real to me. Davy is always too brave, and he always does it all alone. At least Robin Hood uses his men, too!

Cheryl Lewis, 33 Clay Street: Davy Crockett is my choice. He's better dressed than Robin Hood. By that, I mean Davy always has all the necessary fighting equipment and looks like he's more ready to fight. And, anyhow, Robin Hood isn't as brave as Davy—Davy never runs away.

forthcoming appearance has been planned by the Intergroup Committee of the Council of Community Services. Mrs. Seymour Montgomery is chairman of the committee, Mrs. John V. A. Fine is secretary and Mrs. Dankwart A. Rustow is publicity chairman.

Women Tour Hospital. Members of the Princeton Business & Professional Women's Club toured the facilities of Princeton Hospital last Monday as a special feature of their regular January meeting. They visited the clinics, laboratories and X-ray department.

Mrs. Anne Dennen, health and safety chairman of the club, reported that the tour was arranged to continue the organization's theme, "Know Your Community." Following the visit, a social hour was held at Mrs. Dennen's home, with the hostess assisted by Dr. Marion Speer, Mrs. Helen Kraus and Mrs. Esther Stalker.

Deerslayer in Trouble. A heavy penalty of $220 — $100 for each deer and $10 for court costs in each instance — was levied this week against Michael Tomasi, 43 Moran Avenue, found guilty of possessing two wild deer during closed season. Professing his innocence, the defendant told Township Magistrate Louis R. Gerber that he intended to appeal the decision at once.

The magistrate based his verdict on circumstantial informa-

"Outstanding Man" Sought

The "Outstanding Young Man of the Year" in Princeton is being sought by the Junior Chamber of Commerce, with nominations for the honor open to any individual or organization in this area. The Jaycees declare that the project is being undertaken to show the people of Princeton "that success in our free enterprise system is still available to those who strive to achieve it."

Any man from 21 to 35 is eligible, with those who have become 36 since December 31 open to consideration if their achievements were recorded prior to that time. The award will be made on a basis of accomplishments, leadership and service to the community or State during 1955, with nominations to be submitted in one of three categories: civic accomplishments, religion or government.

A brief resume of the nominee's contribution in his field, as well as to the public welfare, must accompany all nominations, which will be judged by a panel of community leaders. Nominations must be postmarked no later than Friday, January 20, and sent to the Jaycees' president, Leonard F. Newton, 44 Stanworth Lane.

tion provided by Thomas F. Nolan, state fish and game warden, advising Mr. Tomasi that "physical evidence sometimes is more significant than spoken words." Warden Nolan testified that he found two deer hides, one from an illegally slain doe and the other from a buck killed with illegal No. 6 shot, in a trash box belonging to Mr. Tomasi on property formerly owned by the defendant.

In support of his charges, the warden produced a letter addressed to Mr. and Mrs. Tomasi, discovered in the box with the skin, and questioned one of the defendant's neighbors, Donald Briggs, 41 Moran Avenue, who admitted dumping the box where it was found, though stating he was not cognizant of its contents.

Magistrate Gerber departed from the normal routine for a few minutes during the trial when he led an expedition of all persons involved to Mr. Nolan's car to inspect the hides and box which still contained a dead pheasant placed in it by Mr. Tomasi's children. He said he preferred the short walk to foisting the "odor of the evidence" on the new Township courtroom and its inhabitants.

In two other matters before the court, Magistrate Gerber imposed a $20 fine on Joseph Yo Nishimura, a Princeton University student, for careless driving in a two-car accident with Paul V. McKinney, The Great Road, who was ruled innocent of the same complaint. He also fined a Somerville driver $25 for the same offense.

Not before the court, but of interest to it, were two license revocations issued by the Division of Motor Vehicles. Alfred L. Bernard, R. D. 1, Little Rocky Hill, was relieved of his license for an indefinite period for "racing with another car, stop-sign violation, unlicensed driver and two speeding convictions," while Jasper S. Black, a maintenance man at The Hun School, lost his license for a year due to reckless and careless driving convictions coupled with two speeding offenses.

Nini Joins Shelton. Anthony D. Nini who has been associated with the Shelton Motor Co. for the past five years, has been made vice-president of the firm. Frank A. Shelton, president of the corporation which sells DeSoto and Plymouth automobiles for Chrysler, made the announcement this week.

Mr. Nini, who lives at 38 Erdman Avenue, was associated with two other Princeton car dealers before joining Shelton Motors, where he has held the position of parts and service manager. A graduate of Princeton High School, Class of 1943, he is 28 years of age and a veteran who saw service in the Navy.

Boy Scout Rally. Some 600 Stony Brook District Boy Scouts and Explorers will converge on Princeton University's Dillon Gymnasium January 20 for a mammoth scoutcraft competition from 7:30 to 9 p.m. Parents, friends and the general public are invited to the annual event attracting youth from Washington Crossing, Pennington, Hope-

Santa Sends Thanks

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

Little by little, I am catching up with my letter-writing again, following a busy Christmas period as Princeton's Santa Claus. My apologies for being tardy in writing you.

I wish to thank you and the entire staff of TOWN TOPICS for helping put over my very best and biggest "Operation Santa Claus" in 1955. I also wish to enlarge on my thanks to all of you for writing such a nice feature story about me, complete with a very fine picture. Incidentally, everyone who has seen the picture likes it a great deal, and I now only have one left, which I plan to send to California to a dear, elderly friend of mine.

May I convey my sincere wishes for a most happy, prosperous and progressive New Year to all of you at 4 Mercer Street. And may I again tender my many thanks for a good job, well-done!

Appreciation Expressed

To the Editor of TOWN TOPICS:

We want you to know how very much the Christmas appeal that you make in behalf of some of our underprivileged clients means to the Social Service Bureau. We are greatly in your debt for the very generous donation of your important front page. Of course, not only at Christmas but through the year we are appreciatively aware of your interest and help.

ELEANOR PIERCE

Publicity Chairman,
Social Service Bureau)

well, Kingston, Penns Neck, Hightstown, Cranbury and Allentown.

The District Rally will feature two complete exhibitions of scoutcraft. Boy Scouts, age 11 through 13, will compete by patrols for ribbons in knot tying, packing camp equipment, signaling and first aid, while the Explorers, age 14 through 17, will compete as teams in first aid, canoe tilting, rope splicing, signaling and baseball pitching.

Master of ceremonies will be Robert Kugler of Cranbury, district commissioner of the Stony Brook District. Members of the Rally committee are Fred Blaiher, H. C. Pichette, John Boles, Harold Erb, Robert Sandford, Orville Dow, Bruce Rankin, Harvey Hook and William Fisher.

Women Voters Meeting Set. Mrs. Virginia Van Dyke, state chairman of the Water Policy and Supply Committee, will give a talk at a meeting of the League of Women Voters on Tuesday. The meeting will be held at 12:30 at the home of Mrs. G. C. Akers, 384 Stockton Road.

Those interested in attending should call 4208. They are asked to bring their own lunch, with dessert and coffee served at 1:00 p.m., followed by the discussion.

International Living Program. The Princeton High School PTA will present its annual program on "International Living" at its meeting Tuesday at 8 p.m. Frank Soda will serve as moderator of the discussion, while Mrs. Donald Hamilton is in charge of refreshments.

Those taking part will include foreign students living here this year: Hiroko Kawanami, Japan; Ulla Allard, Norway, and Bert Lorenz, Germany, all attending Princeton High; Theano Kelaidi, Greece, at Miss Fine's; Joyce Johnson, John Shope and Betsy Thomas, who spent last summer in Europe, and two students from the Herald-Tribune Forum who are spending two weeks in Princeton.

Dr. Garber to Speak. Dr. Robert S. Garber, superintendent of the New Jersey Neuro-Psychiatric Institute at Skillman, will speak on "You, Nerves, and Nervous Tension" at a meeting of the Town Club of Princeton Wednesday in the Engineering Lounge of Frick Hall, Washington Road, starting at 8 p.m.

Dr. Garber's talk on psychiatry in lay terms, types of illness which respond to treatment, and results to be expected will be open to the public. Under Dr. Garber's leadership, the program at the NJNPI has been reorganized to meet broader needs of treatment.

Hospital Laboratories Completed. Two important milestones in Princeton Hospital's continuing development as a community health center were passed this week with the completion of the Curtis W. McGraw Laboratories and the opening of the Engstrom Dental Clinic.

The Laboratories, a $145,000 undertaking completed after more than two years of planning and work, provide the hospital with enormously expanded laboratory and x-ray facilities in which it is planned to make 75,000 laboratory tests and 12,000 x-rays during 1956. The Engstrom Dental Clinic will make it possible for the Dental Section of the Hospital's staff to operate a weekly clinic as a part of the expanding Outpatient Clinical Program. The clinic is the gift of Dr. Elmer W. Engstrom, senior executive vice-president of the Radio Corporation of America and member of the Hospital's Board of Trustees, and Mrs. Engstrom, residents of 35 Battle Road.

Established in the fall of 1953 as a living memorial to Mr. McGraw, president of the Hospital and a trustee for 23 years, the McGraw Laboratories possess modern facilities described by New Jersey medical authorities as "certainly comparable to the radiology and pathology departments maintained by large-city medical center." The laboratory and x-ray divisions of the McGraw Laboratories are located adjacently on the Hospital's main floor, occupying a combined total of 25 rooms of varying size and staffed by 22 persons. The divisions are directed respectively by Dr. Thomas S. Harvey, chief pathologist, and Dr. Elwood W. Godfrey, chief radiologist and Dr. William J. Grippe, associate radiologist.

Following the completion of the McGraw Laboratories, John H. Wallace Jr., president of the Hospital's Board of Trustees, termed the facilities "a most fitting memorial to Mr. McGraw," who was working for the needed expansion of the laboratory and x-ray departments at the time of his death in 1953. In recalling how Mr. McGraw, the Hospital's president from 1947 until 1953, raised over $1,200,000 for enlargement and modernization of the Hospital, Mr. Wallace expressed the "community's and the Hospital's deep appreciation to all those who have made it possible to translate Mr. McGraw's dreams into actuality."

The fund-raising campaign for the Laboratories was headed by Norvell B. Samuels, associate director and controller of the University Press and a former Hospital trustee. The hundreds of contributions to the McGraw Laboratories included a $50,000 gift from the McGraw-Hill Publishing Company, Inc., New York City, of which Mr. McGraw was president at the time of his death.

The Engstrom Dental Clinic becomes the tenth regular weekly clinic operated by the Hospital for those in this area needing free medical and dental care. Starting this week, the clinic will be held each Thursday at 8 a. m.

"March of Dimes Month." Mayor P. McKay Sturges of Princeton Borough and Mayor John H. Wallace Jr. of Princeton Township have named January "March of Dimes Month," declaring that "polio isn't licked yet" and calling on the community to join the national fight against the disease by contributing generously.

Emphasizing that the Mercer County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis used $34,031.43 to care for polio patients in 1955, the proclamation issued by the two mayors asserted that "care and treatment for all present and future polio patients must be continued."

Further impetus to the March of Dimes campaign will be given Saturday and Sunday when ministers in many Princeton churches will deliver sermons on the theme, in co-operation with the National Foundation's designation of the two days as "Polio Sabbath."

Sports in Princeton

Hanover Ahead. Princeton basketball and hockey teams invade Hanover, N. H., this weekend for Ivy League contests in their respective sports before the fortnight's break for term-end examinations. Varsity action at home is confined to a swimming meet against the Bainbridge Naval School and a wrestling match with Pennsylvania, both starting at 4:15.

Dick Vaughan's hockey team will be opening its league season at Hanover, after playing a Friday night contest against Williams at Williamstown. All teams in the five-college circuit are quite evenly matched, with defending champion Harvard still the favorite despite loss for academic reasons of its high-scoring star, Bob Cleary.

Cappy Cappon's basketball team has put the pressure on Dartmouth in Saturday's encounter, since the Indians must triumph to stay in contention for the title. They were favored by the other Ivy coaches to win this year, but lost a pair on their first road trip last weekend and a third defeat this evening in the season would be fatal. An 11-3 mark is about the lowest a team can figure to have and still win outright — last season, the 10-4 records Princeton, Penn and Columbia compiled produced a triple tie.

Dartmouth led by three points in the Palestra Friday night, but thoroughly outplayed Penn in the second half. The Indians all but erased a 12-point deficit incurred by the intermission, and came to Dillon Gym ready to atone for their unsuccessful debut in the search for Ivy laurels.

Paced by sophomore Dave Carruthers (who applied for admission here but wound up at Hanover), the Indians gave a particularly good performance. Six field goals by Carruthers during the early minutes of the first half and a shooting average that bettered 45% gave the Green 43 points as the period ended.

Unfortunately for the vociferous "Doggy" Julian, Dartmouth coach, that wasn't quite enough. It was sufficient to hold the lead for the greater part of the first half, but at the 13:55 mark, Whitley Fulcmer wrapped up a three-point play and the Tigers drew even for the first time at 35-all. The score was tied eight times in the next six minutes, but the visitors were never ahead again.

Perkins shines. If Carruthers was hot for the Indians with a fine push shot, so was the five-foot, ten-inch Fred Perkins for Princeton. He was credited with 16 points in the first half, 26 in all — to take scoring honors — and compiled a gaudy 80% shooting average. When he dropped in 10 of 11 fouls, he completed one of the finest all-around evenings seen on the Dillon floor in several seasons.

Dartmouth trailed by 46-43 at half-time because the Tigers aged 50% of their field goal attempts and guarded with greater finesse, thereby drawing less fouls. Eventually, this led to the end of the story, for the Green was charged with 25 personal, sharp in contrast to 14 for the visitors.

Princeton sank 32 of the 43 free throws it was awarded, while the Indians made 18 of 25. Accordingly, the fact that they collected 32 field goals to 29 for the Tigers made no difference.

Combined with Perkins' fine shooting eye was the fact that Fulcmer outplayed Jim Francis, Dartmouth's 6-8 center, who was good enough to win all-league honors as a sophomore. Fulcmer collected 26 rebounds of 11-41 that Princeton grabbed, while Francis was high for the losers with 12 of 47.

Whitley got one more point (23 to 22) than Francis made, giving far and away the best performance of his brief career. Julian alternated 6-5 Tom Donahue and Francis against Fulcmer with the hope of wearing him down, but the Tiger sophomore went 40 minutes without losing in efficiency.

Captain John DeVoe caged 21 points, despite an off night on the foul line that saw him miss six out of 13. He directed the offense to near perfection as the Tigers hit for 49.2%, largely on sets from the outside that drew the Dartmouth zone defense out of position with deft passing. It was not until midway in the second half that the Indians switched to man-to-man and the familiar weave was set in motion.

THE LONG AND SHORT OF IT: Whitley Fulcmer and Fred Perkins, 6-6 and 5-10, combined tonight play to give Princeton key victory over Dartmouth.

Don Davidson and Ken MacKenzie were in lesser evidence in the scoring column, with ten and eight respectively, but it was three field goals that were credited to this pair in the space of 51 seconds early in the second half that helped give Princeton a good sized lead. From 46-43 the Orange and Black moved out quickly to 58-47, 66-55 and finally 81-69 for its biggest spread of the evening.

The visitors occasionally perched their deficit to five points, and with 27 seconds left, trailed by four at 86-82. Ben Spohell then caged a pair of free throws (including a technical against Dartmouth for disagreeing with the officiating) and DeVoe dunked a one-hander from 20 feet out as the buzzer was sounding.

had seen a 90-82 setback for the Green that went into the books as its seventh loss in a row after five straight victories. Princeton is now 5-5.

Brown Drubbed. Behind by 13-0 after five minutes of play, Brown provided little opposition in Friday night's league opener for the Tigers. The Providence entry (which gave Penn considerably more opposition Saturday before bowing, 63-54) lost to Princeton, 85-58. It was 45-24 at the half.

Six members of the Orange and Black team were in double figures, including Ben Spinelli, who made 12 after sitting out the first 16 minutes. John Devoe was high with 17, so that he and Perkins were tied for two-game scoring honors with 38 apiece.

Hockey Team Coasts. Taking an Army team that was playing its first game of the season too lightly, Princeton nearly lost to the cadets Saturday afternoon. The visitors were none too impressive, but a shoddy defense helped them to five goals in the first two and a half periods, and with seven minutes left, they had a two-goal lead.

Roger Boocock narrowed the margin at 13:57, with an angle shot from 20 feet out, but it was not until 19:30 of the final round that Charlie Pratt flicked a pretty backhand shot past goalie Dirk Leuders. The sudden-death overtime period was only 17 seconds old before Harry Rulon-Miller slapped the puck from a face-off into the Army cage on three bounces. The 6-5 final gave the

Tigers a 5-4 record for the season.

Unimaginative work around the goal by the Nassau defense continually kept Dave Robinson in hot water, Army's first two tallies coming from point blank range after weak clearing passes had been intercepted. Senior Hugh Watts is out for an indefinite time, recovering from a serious eye injury sustained when a stick hit him in the face in the Minnesota game at Troy, N. Y., a fortnight ago.

His absence is felt, particularly since only Matt Plum of the other defensemen has a full share of varsity experience. In the space of seven minutes in the third round, Army scored three times, with repetition of such a lapse against tougher Ivy league opponents likely to be more costly.

High partisans' New Year's dreams of an undefeated basketball campaign went abruptly out the window last Friday afternoon, but, even in defeat, the Little Tigers looked good enough to convince their followers that they are en route to a winning season.

Playing for the third time in four games on their own floor, the PHS eagles lost to a tall-talented Long Branch High team, 86-82. The decision was reached in the final 30 seconds of competition, when the Branchers' diminutive Ralph Primavera (5-5) intercepted an errant, fast-break Princeton pass and fed to Arnold Elmore for a tie-snapping field goal.

Elmore, as much trouble on the basketball court as he was while quarterbacking a fine Long Branch football club last fall, deposited another, final-second basket following an unsuccessful free throw attempt, though this two-pointer served only to raise his personal total to 26 (on 13 field goals).

Before the last disastrous half-minute, Princeton appeared well on its way to victory No. 4. The Little Tigers led after two periods, 41-35, and they increased this difference to 10 points with less than seven minutes remaining in the fourth quarter.

Then, the visiting Branchers displayed a torrid, never-miss knack that bewildered the home forces and sent them reeling before they could shoot themselves back in the contest. Unable to edge PHS in any other period, Long Branch dominated the final session, 29-16.

Part of the sudden Princeton fold was caused by removal of Nick Kovalakides from the Little Tigers' "iron man" quintet for four of the final seven minutes due to a deep head cut. His play-making ability was sorely needed in the closing moments. But, actually, his absence was balanced by a 10-minute, first-half injury to Long Branch Captain Mike Ippolito, who returned to the contest in time to spark the winning rally and sink 19 points.

Rebounds Tell The Story. Despite the height of Princeton Captain Lee Ammerman (6-3) and the jumping finesse of teammate Marv Trotman, Long Branch, with a 6-6 center and everyone but Primavera over 6 feet, controlled the backboards, and, in the long run, that factor was the big difference. Ammerman grabbed 16 rebounds, but the visitors snared a big majority of them, particularly in the closing minutes.

The Long Branch club, well-endowed with muscular football players, committed an unusually high number of fouls, with the Little Tigers taking advantage of the situation by netting 32 of 40 tries for an incredible 80%. The visitors made only four of 17 free throws, but their control of the rebounds showed up in the field goal differential, 41 to 25.

Trotman, with an average of 26 points per game going into the Long Branch encounter, improved his season's record with the game's high of 29 markers. His field goal output was cut down appreciably by Long Branch fouling, so he countered by sinking 15 of 18 foul shots. Ammerman, with 11 out of 14 free throws, connected for 23 points and Ray Cevera got 15 for PHS. Dick Borger, off his usual game in the first half, warmed up in the second and sneaked into double figures with 12.

Hunterdon Hunters Hot

Mercer County hunters bagged far fewer deer during 1955 than their other county brethren around the state, probably due to far fewer hunting acres, but, despite this fact, an all-time big game record was set. Licensed hunters shot 6,114 huck deer, or 1,338 more than the 1954 kill.

According to a year-end report from the State Division of Fish and Game, bow and arrow hunters increased the overall total to 6,482 deer by bagging 368 deer during their exclusive 1955 season.

The total Mercer County figure was 214, compared with 747 for state-leading Hunterdon County, 737 for Sussex County, 720 for Burlington County and 701 for Morris County, last year's pace-setter. Hudson County was the lone area in New Jersey which provided no deer for licensed hunters in 1955.

Last week's contest left Princeton with a 3-1 record and Long Branch with a creditable 4-2 standing. This Friday, at 3 p.m., the Little Tigers will play at home against Hamilton High, their initial intracounty opponent of the campaign as well as an early-season loser to Long Branch, and next Tuesday they will travel to Ewing for a second intracounty set-to.

The Princeton High junior varsity won its fourth straight game last Friday, topping the Long Branch juniors, 81-61, for the visitors' first loss. Alan Ammerman led the PHS attack with 24 points, while teammate Steve Hogarty collected 21.

Kiln It Yourself. Enamel on copper jewelry has been popular for some years now, and we've always wondered how they do one of the most difficult craft techniques for an artisan to master. Set here is Nassau Paint (226 Nassau) with an impudent little kit that says you, too, can make enamel on copper jewelry, and gives—well, provides—the kiln to do it.

The box is small, and the kiln looks exactly like a baby's little warmer. But its size is deceptive. It will heat up to 1500 degrees Fahrenheit, and fuse the enamel "dust" to the copper surface.

The "Trinkit" costs $6.95. For this sum, you get the electric kiln, an assortment of copper shavings, you can use for earrings, cuff links, pendants or pins. There are also 12 tubes of enamel colors, and some glass scraps which you can use for a three-dimensional design. Special oils, sandpaper, and a dozen "findings" to make your jewelry. The instructions, complete the "Trinkit", which also includes clasps, pins, and earring hooks to fasten to the objects you make.

Here's a plastic shadow-box to make and use as a lighted wall picture, a TV lamp, or a child's night light. It's about six by nine inches, with an aquarium scene set into it, and numbered plastic parts so that you can put it together with ease. The frame is black. For $1.98.

For some time now, hobbyists have been making figurines out of plaster of paris. Using rubber molds. This technique has been adapted to some new objects: a pin, a kerchief slide, and a small plaque.

You pour the plaster of paris into the rubber mold, let it set, remove it, and paint the figure according to your fancy. We saw a pin that was an owl, a three-inch ring that had a clown's head on it in relief, and a kerchief pin that was a sleeping kitten. The price is 98c, and includes the pin or mounting device.

Township Going To Dogs

While the population of Princeton Township will not equal that of Princeton Borough until approximately 1970, according to latest official reasoning, the Township already has caught and passed the Borough in number of registered canines. The final 1955 count of noses: 902 to 828.

Township Clerk Joseph R. Nish, confident though not necessarily hopeful of a dog-borne big statistical margin this year, reminded official reasoning that January 31 is the deadline for obtaining 1956 licenses for their pets. The Borough's board rate for male as well as females over seven months of age is $24 a head.

In the Borough, which has considered a dog's life the cat's palamas ever since Woodrow Wilson recognized the importance of the canines' place in our society, the male of the species is a breed unto himself. Clerk Robert F. Mooney explained. The fee for him is only $1.25, as opposed to $2.25 for his girl friends. The deadline's the same as the Township's: January 31.

Kinley and Mrs. Wesley Nicholson, refreshments.

Committee Names Griffin. The legislative committee of the New Jersey State League of Municipalities this week gained a new member for 1956, Gordon D. Griffin, Princeton Township attorney. He was appointed to the important, policy-determining group by Ralph N. Bull, league president, and members of the league's executive board.

The committee, which meets frequently during the state's legislative session, contributes articles to the league's magazine, and is its most influential work body up in the league's monthly bulletin, which explains new laws and pending bills and signifies the committee's studied endorsement of or opposition to certain bills. All New Jersey municipal officers receive the bulletin, benefiting often from their roundup of new ideas.

Miscellany. Parents of sons at Princeton Hospital include Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mitchell, 3 Palmer Square, to whom twins have been born; Mr. and Mrs. William J. Schneeweis, 31 Carnegie Drive; Mr. and Mrs. Stuart Duncan, 24 151 Loomis Court; Mr. and Mrs. —Continued on Page 21

News of the Churches

What Do We Believe? Several religious groups in Princeton have begun the New Year by launch- in a series of classes, discussions or study groups on the historical and philosophical nature of their beliefs. These courses are designed both for the education of church members and for the enlightenment of outsiders.

The Unitarian church has announced a series, "Explorations of Our Beliefs," to be held at Avalon every third Sunday at 11 a. m. beginning this Sunday. After an abbreviated worship service, the speaker will present a specific subject, and then lead an open forum in discussion of that subject. This Sunday, Mrs. R. Kenneth Fairman will open the series by examining the question "Why Do We Congregate to Worship?"

On succeeding "third Sundays," the congregation will turn its attention to "Are We A Church and Are We Christian?", "What Is Our Basis for Morality?", and "How Does Our Religion Help the Individual?" All those interested are invited to attend.

The Society of Friends has arranged two series of study groups. One will meet next Monday and each succeeding Monday at 8:30 p. m., the other will meet next Wednesday and each Wednesday thereafter at 8:30 p. m.

The Wednesday evening group will be led by Herrington Maurer and will examine Quakerism as its general topic. The first meeting will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Garland, Jr., Lower Harrison Street. The Monday evening group will study the Bible, with special emphasis on the Bible as it is taught in Princeton's First Day School. Mrs. Richard L. Stoddard will be the leader, and the group will hold its first meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Head.

"University of Life." At the Methodist Church, the annual "University of Life" classes will consider this year, "Vital Forces in American Christianity" under the leadership of Dr. Leifert A. Loetscher, professor of American Church History at the Seminary. These classes will be held for four Wednesdays, starting next Wednesday. The evenings will begin with a covered dish supper at 6 p. m., followed by singing with classes starting at 7:30 and lasting until 8:30. Kindergarten and other children will have their classes, too.

The first student Dr. Loetscher has chosen is "Puritanism-God-Centered Christianity," to be followed on January 25 by "Revivalism—Personal Christianity," on February 1 by "Social Concern—Appled Christianity," and finally on February 8 by "Interdenominationalism—Cooperative Christianity."

Members of the Jewish Center have started a new study group on the Bible, to meet twice a week on the second and fourth Tuesdays from 12:30 to 2:30 p. m. Rabbi Joseph H. Gelberman will be the leader. The first session will be held on January 24 at the home of Mrs. Benjamin Miller, 253 Hawthorne.

Study Group II in "Basic Judaism" will meet next Tuesday at 8 p. m. at the home of S. Metzger, 56 Marlon Road.

"The Church Situation." Dr. George Geng will be the speaker at the second dinner meeting in the series, "The Church Situation," sponsored by the First Presbyterian Church. Dr. Geng is director of the New York Center of Chinese Students and Alumni Services, and director of the Chinese Students' Center, Columbia University. A graduate of Shanghai University, Dr. Geng was formerly Dean of Students at that University. He has been in this country since 1948.

Dr. Geng will speak next Wednesday at 8 p. m. in the Assembly Room following a dinner at 6:45 p. m. Reservations for dinner may be made by calling 1-0103 by next Monday.

Credit Union Meets. Members of the Witherpoon Federal Credit Union will meet this Thursday for dinner in the Parish House at 7:30 p. m. followed by the first annual meeting of the union. Dr. Benjamin W. P. Allen, founder and treasurer of the credit union of the First Baptist Church, Cranford, will be guest speaker.

Second Church Nominates. New members of the Session, the Board of Deacons and the Board of Trustees have been nominated for presentation to the congregation of the Second Presbyterian Church.

The seven men nominated to serve as Session members through 1958 are Marshall M. Deacons, in the class of 1958; Gustave Eisenmann, Dr. E. Harris Harbison, James A. Rowan, Alfred D. Sweeney, Donald S. W. P. Allen, founder and treasurer of the credit union of the First Baptist Church, Cranford, will be guest speaker.

The following men have been chosen to serve on the Board of Deacons in the class of 1958: Alexander B. Donald, Robert Drummond, Frederick L. Godshalk, George H. Beebe, Charles J. Hunt, Jr., Harry R. Slayback, Frank M. Updike, Arthur B. Ward and Robert Nelson.

Lawrenceville Topics

Music House Opened. Lawrenceville School has opened the newest building on its campus, a separate home for music activities, Headmaster Allan V. Heely announced this week. The new structure is located on the northwest corner of the campus, approximately opposite Titus Avenue.

The building includes a large rehearsal room, four music appreciation rooms, classrooms, and the office of musical director Theodore H. Keller. The overall size is 99½ by 34 feet and the construction is of wood with brick veneer front. Special sound proofing is included to permit simultaneous rehearsals and other events.

A sizeable portion of the funds for the new building was provided through gifts to the Alumni Fund from the late Arthur Bradley Campbell '07 of New York, long active in musical circles in the Metropolitan area.

The architect for the building was Livingston Smith of Philadelphia, who has designed many of the school's most recent buildings, including the Lavino Field House, which is considered one of the outstanding sport facilities of its kind in the country.

New Engineer to Be Named. The sudden resignation of William S. Stratton as township engineer over the weekend left the Lawrence Township Committee with the post empty and the task of choosing a successor by its next meeting on Wednesday, January 18.

Mr. Stratton had declined reappointment to the planning board earlier this month because of the fact that his firm, Trenton Engineering Company, sometimes is retained by persons whose cases are heard by the board. On Friday he learned that he could not legally hold the engineer's post because he is not a New Jersey-licensed engineer, although his firm associates are.

Mr. Stratton resigned at the same time posts as engineer and planning board member in Ewing Township. He was officially appointed in both townships two years ago, having served in an acting capacity for two years previously. His father, the late B. Frank Stratton, had served as township engineer for the quarter century before.
